

Diarrhoea and vomiting

Diarrhoea and vomiting is an airborne virus, and can be highly contagious. Children can still be contagious even after symptoms have settled. Children should stay at home for 48hours after your child's symptoms have resolved. If your child returns too early you will be contacted to take them home.

Fever

A fever can be an early sign of a viral infection which is easily spread in children. Your child should stay at home for 24hours after the fever has settled with no medication. Keeping children at home will help speed up their recovery and will also help prevent the spread of the virus. For some children a simple virus can be very dangerous for their health. If your child returns too early you will be contacted to take them home.
